The foremost organization dedicated to the reclamation and rehabilitation of distressed land and waterways, the American Society of Reclamation Sciences (ASRS) publishes their magazine twice a year.

Established in 1983 to serve the mining and reclamation community, the association, as well as their magazine, Reclamation Matters, provides a voice for scientific research and profiles major reclamation features from an ASRS viewpoint.

The magazine is distributed to industry, engineers, investors, and to other like-minded groups and individuals responsible for the reclamation, re-vegetation, and revitalization of our land and waterways.
